Linz, Austria

Johannes Kepler University is located in Linz, Austria, a city of 200,000 inhabitants on the Danube river. It has a modern campus with 15,000 students that offers various programs in Business, Economics, Sciences, and Law. Its Institute for International Management Studies prepares students for the “Magister in International Business Administration”. The main objective of this program is to concentrate in Austrian and European social, legal, and economic systems, and international business.

Johannes Kepler University Linz is a young and dynamic institution of higher education and research. It is not only famous for its high level of teaching and research, but has also earned a reputation as an attractive partner for businesses and various social and governmental institutions.

Unlike many other universities, where the individual faculties are spread out throughout the town, all faculties of the University of Linz are situated on a single campus covering some 350,000 square meters. The athletic grounds and three student residences are located directly on site. Two other student residences - among them the largest one for about 1300 students - are situated within a five minute walking distance.

Upperclass Mays Business School undergraduate students, will be permitted to take courses during Johannes Kepler University’s regular semesters. You must register for a minimum of 12 credit hours at TAMU per semester of study at Johannes Kepler University (JKU), and you must be fluent in German to be able to attend classes and take full advantage of the academic and cultural experience.
