

National University of Singapore (NUS)

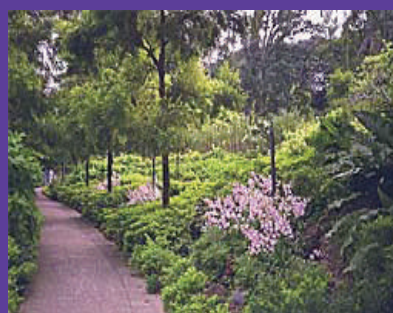

Since its foundation in 1905, the National University of Singapore (NUS) has gone through a rich history for over a 100 years. Today, it commands international recognition for its excellence in teaching and research, and offers an educational experience comparable with top universities in the world.

At NUS, there are no walls around minds, no walls to ideas, no walls to talent and no walls between discovery, transfer, and application of knowledge. The NUS experience helps students realize their full potential and prepare themselves for an increasingly boundaryless and innovation-driven global economy. With a cosmopolitan student population and a wide gamut of sporting and recreational activities that make student life vibrant, this completes the learning experience at NUS.

Students will also hone their survival skills as they adapt in foreign environments and grow to be independent and resourceful. Such experiences are meant to equip and put them in good stead for further studies or ventures into the working world.

Undergraduate Texas A&M students at the junior level, will be permitted to take courses during NUS semesters; see below. You must enroll for a minimum of 12 credit hours at TAMU per semester at NUS. It is aimed at students wishing to get a thorough understanding of the Asian/Chinese business environment.
